Summary of this inspection

Why we carried out this inspection

We carried out this inspection to check whether Stoke Newington Dental Care Ltd had taken action to meet the following essential standards:

- Supporting workers
- Assessing and monitoring the quality of service provision

This was an announced inspection.

How we carried out this inspection

We carried out a visit on 17 June 2014 and talked with staff.

What people told us and what we found

At our last inspection in February 2014 we found that the provider was non-compliant with regulations relating to the support provided for staff, in particular there was a lack of supervision and appraisal. The provider was also non-compliant with regulations relating to the way it assessed and monitored the quality of its service. We asked for, but were not shown, any evidence that the practice used patient feedback to monitor and improve care.

At this inspection we found that the provider had addressed these issues. Staff received support including training, appraisal and individual supervision. We were shown how the practice obtained feedback from patients and used this to monitor performance. Recent patient feedback about the practice had been very positive and no issues for improvement had been identified.

You can see our judgements on the front page of this report.

More information about the provider

Please see our website www.cqc.org.uk for more information, including our most recent judgements against the essential standards. You can contact us using the telephone number on the back of the report if you have additional questions.

There is a glossary at the back of this report which has definitions for words and phrases we use in the report.

Our judgements for each standard inspected

Supporting workers ✓ Met this standard

Staff should be properly trained and supervised, and have the chance to develop and improve their skills

Our judgement

The provider was meeting this standard.

People were cared for by staff who were supported to deliver care and treatment safely and to an appropriate standard.

Reasons for our judgement

At our previous inspection in February 2014, staff told us they felt supported by the practice manager but they were not receiving regular supervision and appraisal sessions. This meant there was no support structure in place for staff to talk through any issues about their role, or about the treatment provided, with their line manager or supervisor. Staff also told us that they did not always have the equipment, such as sterilising pouches, they needed for their work.

The provider wrote to us following the inspection and told us that staff would receive regular appraisal and supervision sessions. We reviewed the support provided to staff at this inspection. Staff were now scheduled to have an appraisal with their manager every six months. We reviewed a number of appraisal records. The meetings covered performance and development. We saw that actions identified at appraisal, for example for further training or development opportunities, had been followed up.

We were also told that the head nurse was in now in charge of ordering new stocks and supplies and had checked with the clinical staff what supplies were needed. The manager told us the practice had not experienced low stocks of supplies or other equipment problems since our last inspection. This was also confirmed by one of the dentists.

Assessing and monitoring the quality of service provision ✓ Met this standard

The service should have quality checking systems to manage risks and assure the health, welfare and safety of people who receive care

Our judgement

The provider was meeting this standard.

The provider had an effective system to regularly assess and monitor the quality of service that people received.

Reasons for our judgement

At our previous inspection in February 2014, we were told that the practice regularly obtained people's feedback so that it could assess and monitor the quality of services provided. We asked the provider to forward us results of the patient satisfaction audits as well as a policy relating to quality assurance systems, however the provider failed to supply us with this information.

Following the inspection, the provider wrote to us, enclosing an analysis of recent written patient feedback. At this inspection, we reviewed the way the practice used patient feedback to monitor the quality of the service. Patients were asked to complete a feedback form when visiting the practice. These were collated monthly and shared with the head office. Any issues would trigger a review between the practice manager and head office to identify areas for improvement. We were told by both the practice manager and the regional manager that patient feedback had been positive for the practice and no recent issues had been identified. We reviewed the most recent survey results and saw that patient feedback was very positive.

About CQC inspections

We are the regulator of health and social care in England.

All providers of regulated health and social care services have a legal responsibility to make sure they are meeting essential standards of quality and safety. These are the standards everyone should be able to expect when they receive care.

The essential standards are described in the Health and Social Care Act 2008 (Regulated Activities) Regulations 2010 and the Care Quality Commission (Registration) Regulations 2009. We regulate against these standards, which we sometimes describe as "government standards".

We carry out unannounced inspections of all care homes, acute hospitals and domiciliary care services in England at least once a year to judge whether or not the essential standards are being met. We carry out inspections of other services less often. All of our inspections are unannounced unless there is a good reason to let the provider know we are coming.

There are 16 essential standards that relate most directly to the quality and safety of care and these are grouped into five key areas. When we inspect we could check all or part of any of the 16 standards at any time depending on the individual circumstances of the service. Because of this we often check different standards at different times.

When we inspect, we always visit and we do things like observe how people are cared for, and we talk to people who use the service, to their carers and to staff. We also review information we have gathered about the provider, check the service's records and check whether the right systems and processes are in place.

We focus on whether or not the provider is meeting the standards and we are guided by whether people are experiencing the outcomes they should be able to expect when the standards are being met. By outcomes we mean the impact care has on the health, safety and welfare of people who use the service, and the experience they have whilst receiving it.

Our inspectors judge if any action is required by the provider of the service to improve the standard of care being provided. Where providers are non-compliant with the regulations, we take enforcement action against them. If we require a service to take action, or if we take enforcement action, we re-inspect it before its next routine inspection was due. This could mean we re-inspect a service several times in one year. We also might decide to re-inspect a service if new concerns emerge about it before the next routine inspection.

In between inspections we continually monitor information we have about providers. The information comes from the public, the provider, other organisations, and from care workers.

You can tell us about your experience of this provider on our website.

How we define our judgements

The following pages show our findings and regulatory judgement for each essential standard or part of the standard that we inspected. Our judgements are based on the ongoing review and analysis of the information gathered by CQC about this provider and the evidence collected during this inspection.

We reach one of the following judgements for each essential standard inspected.

✓ Met this standard	This means that the standard was being met in that the provider was compliant with the regulation. If we find that standards were met, we take no regulatory action but we may make comments that may be useful to the provider and to the public about minor improvements that could be made.
✖ Action needed	This means that the standard was not being met in that the provider was non-compliant with the regulation. We may have set a compliance action requiring the provider to produce a report setting out how and by when changes will be made to make sure they comply with the standard. We monitor the implementation of action plans in these reports and, if necessary, take further action. We may have identified a breach of a regulation which is more serious, and we will make sure action is taken. We will report on this when it is complete.
✖ Enforcement action taken	If the breach of the regulation was more serious, or there have been several or continual breaches, we have a range of actions we take using the criminal and/or civil procedures in the Health and Social Care Act 2008 and relevant regulations. These enforcement powers include issuing a warning notice; restricting or suspending the services a provider can offer, or the number of people it can care for; issuing fines and formal cautions; in extreme cases, cancelling a provider or managers registration or prosecuting a manager or provider. These enforcement powers are set out in law and mean that we can take swift, targeted action where services are failing people.

Where we find non-compliance with a regulation (or part of a regulation), we state which part of the regulation has been breached. Only where there is non compliance with one or more of Regulations 9-24 of the Regulated Activity Regulations, will our report include a judgement about the level of impact on people who use the service (and others, if appropriate to the regulation). This could be a minor, moderate or major impact.

Minor impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had an impact on their health, safety or welfare or there was a risk of this happening. The impact was not significant and the matter could be managed or resolved quickly.

Moderate impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had a significant effect on their health, safety or welfare or there was a risk of this happening. The matter may need to be resolved quickly.

Major impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had a serious current or long term impact on their health, safety and welfare, or there was a risk of this happening. The matter needs to be resolved quickly

We decide the most appropriate action to take to ensure that the necessary changes are made. We always follow up to check whether action has been taken to meet the standards.
