Summary of this inspection

Why we carried out this inspection

---

We carried out this inspection to check whether Bluebird Care (Aylesbury and Wycombe) had taken action to meet the following essential standards:

- Management of medicines

This was an unannounced inspection.

How we carried out this inspection

We looked at the personal care or treatment records of people who use the service, carried out a visit on 22 January 2014 and talked with staff.

---

What people told us and what we found

When we inspected the service on the 5 June 2013 we found areas of concern relating to the management of medication.

During this follow up inspection we spoke with the manager, and read documents relating to staff members and people who used the service. We saw that the manager had put in place closer monitoring of staff and had increased the frequency of medication training for all staff. An audit tool was being used to monitor staff performance, and appropriate action had been taken to resolve any medication issues.

You can see our judgements on the front page of this report.

More information about the provider

Please see our website www.cqc.org.uk for more information, including our most recent judgements against the essential standards. You can contact us using the telephone number on the back of the report if you have additional questions.

There is a glossary at the back of this report which has definitions for words and phrases we use in the report.

Our judgements for each standard inspected

Management of medicines

✓ Met this standard

People should be given the medicines they need when they need them, and in a safe way

Our judgement

The provider was meeting this standard.

People were protected against the risks associated with medicines because the provider had appropriate arrangements in place to manage medicines.

Reasons for our judgement

We carried out a routine inspection on the 5 June 2013. During the inspection we had concerns relating to the management of medication. Specifically we had concerns that information recorded on the medication administration records (MAR) was incomplete. We found that descriptions of the drugs and staff signatures were not always present. Discrepancies in the records had not been responded to in a timely way. We set a compliance action to address the non-compliance.

Appropriate arrangements were now in place in relation to the recording of medicine. During this visit we spoke with the manager and examined the MAR charts, medication audit form and care records for four people. We saw people's MAR charts recorded the appropriate information regarding medication and staff had completed them correctly to indicate whether medication had been administered or not. We did not see any gaps in recording by staff, which indicated medicines were safely administered. We read the information on the MAR charts included descriptions of the medication, dosage, times and dates. This ensured people were given the right amount of the correct medication at the prescribed time.

During the last inspection we were concerned that where medication errors had occurred the manager had not responded in a timely way. On this visit we could see from the audit forms that each person's MAR charts were checked at the end of each month. The manager had taken appropriate action where changes or problems with medication had been encountered. For example one staff member had failed to record appropriately on the MAR chart. We saw from the audit form this had been identified by the manager, and the staff member was spoken to about the issue, this was recorded in their personal file. This showed the manager had suitable arrangements in place to monitor the administration of medication and address any problems appropriately.

We saw the manager had retrained all the staff in the area of medication. We read in four staff files that their training was up to date. Since the retraining of the staff the manager had completed a performance monitoring audit in relation to medication. This showed us evidence that the number of medication issues had reduced significantly following the retraining and closer monitoring by the manager.

About CQC inspections

We are the regulator of health and social care in England.

All providers of regulated health and social care services have a legal responsibility to make sure they are meeting essential standards of quality and safety. These are the standards everyone should be able to expect when they receive care.

The essential standards are described in the Health and Social Care Act 2008 (Regulated Activities) Regulations 2010 and the Care Quality Commission (Registration) Regulations 2009. We regulate against these standards, which we sometimes describe as "government standards".

We carry out unannounced inspections of all care homes, acute hospitals and domiciliary care services in England at least once a year to judge whether or not the essential standards are being met. We carry out inspections of other services less often. All of our inspections are unannounced unless there is a good reason to let the provider know we are coming.

There are 16 essential standards that relate most directly to the quality and safety of care and these are grouped into five key areas. When we inspect we could check all or part of any of the 16 standards at any time depending on the individual circumstances of the service. Because of this we often check different standards at different times.

When we inspect, we always visit and we do things like observe how people are cared for, and we talk to people who use the service, to their carers and to staff. We also review information we have gathered about the provider, check the service's records and check whether the right systems and processes are in place.

We focus on whether or not the provider is meeting the standards and we are guided by whether people are experiencing the outcomes they should be able to expect when the standards are being met. By outcomes we mean the impact care has on the health, safety and welfare of people who use the service, and the experience they have whilst receiving it.

Our inspectors judge if any action is required by the provider of the service to improve the standard of care being provided. Where providers are non-compliant with the regulations, we take enforcement action against them. If we require a service to take action, or if we take enforcement action, we re-inspect it before its next routine inspection was due. This could mean we re-inspect a service several times in one year. We also might decide to re-inspect a service if new concerns emerge about it before the next routine inspection.

In between inspections we continually monitor information we have about providers. The information comes from the public, the provider, other organisations, and from care workers.

You can tell us about your experience of this provider on our website.

How we define our judgements

The following pages show our findings and regulatory judgement for each essential standard or part of the standard that we inspected. Our judgements are based on the ongoing review and analysis of the information gathered by CQC about this provider and the evidence collected during this inspection.

We reach one of the following judgements for each essential standard inspected.

 Met this standard This means that the standard was being met in that the provider was compliant with the regulation. If we find that standards were met, we take no regulatory action but we may make comments that may be useful to the provider and to the public about minor improvements that could be made.

 Action needed This means that the standard was not being met in that the provider was non-compliant with the regulation. We may have set a compliance action requiring the provider to produce a report setting out how and by when changes will be made to make sure they comply with the standard. We monitor the implementation of action plans in these reports and, if necessary, take further action. We may have identified a breach of a regulation which is more serious, and we will make sure action is taken. We will report on this when it is complete.

 Enforcement action taken If the breach of the regulation was more serious, or there have been several or continual breaches, we have a range of actions we take using the criminal and/or civil procedures in the Health and Social Care Act 2008 and relevant regulations. These enforcement powers include issuing a warning notice; restricting or suspending the services a provider can offer, or the number of people it can care for; issuing fines and formal cautions; in extreme cases, cancelling a provider or managers registration or prosecuting a manager or provider. These enforcement powers are set out in law and mean that we can take swift, targeted action where services are failing people.

How we define our judgements (continued)

Where we find non-compliance with a regulation (or part of a regulation), we state which part of the regulation has been breached. Only where there is non compliance with one or more of Regulations 9-24 of the Regulated Activity Regulations, will our report include a judgement about the level of impact on people who use the service (and others, if appropriate to the regulation). This could be a minor, moderate or major impact.

Minor impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had an impact on their health, safety or welfare or there was a risk of this happening. The impact was not significant and the matter could be managed or resolved quickly.

---

Moderate impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had a significant effect on their health, safety or welfare or there was a risk of this happening. The matter may need to be resolved quickly.

Major impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had a serious current or long term impact on their health, safety and welfare, or there was a risk of this happening. The matter needs to be resolved quickly

---

We decide the most appropriate action to take to ensure that the necessary changes are made. We always follow up to check whether action has been taken to meet the standards.
