Summary of this inspection

Why we carried out this inspection

We carried out this inspection to check whether Nyton House had taken action to meet the following essential standards:

- Management of medicines

This was an unannounced inspection.

How we carried out this inspection

We looked at the personal care or treatment records of people who use the service, carried out a visit on 24 March 2015, observed how people were being cared for and talked with staff.

What people told us and what we found

Nyton House is a care home registered to accommodate up to 23 people. This includes two people living in two adjoining flats. We carried out this inspection following an inspection in July 2014 when issues had been identified with the management of medicines. This was a focused inspection that looked at the management of medicines within the home.

We found that the registered manager had taken the steps needed that ensured that the management of medicines was safe.

Medicines were kept in a locked cupboard or trolley and the keys were kept safe by staff trained to administer medicines. appropriate arrangements were in place for the safe ordering, storing, administering and disposing of medicines.

You can see our judgement on the front page of this report.

Our judgements for each standard inspected

Management of medicines

✓ Met this standard

People should be given the medicines they need when they need them, and in a safe way

Our judgement

The provider was meeting this standard.

People were protected against the risks associated with medicines because the provider had appropriate arrangements in place to manage medicines.

Reasons for our judgement

As a result of our inspection in July 2014 a compliance action was set. The provider was not meeting this standard because they did not have the appropriate arrangements in place to manage medicines. We judged that this had a minor impact on people who used the service. As a result we asked the provider to take action. In response, the provider submitted an action plan which outlined the actions they would take to achieve compliance. At this inspection, we found that sufficient steps had been taken and that the compliance action was met.

People were protected against the risks associated with medicines because the provider had appropriate arrangements in place to manage medicines. Medicines were kept in a locked trolley and the keys were carried by staff who were trained to administer medicines. Only one person was in receipt of controlled drugs and these were stored in a locked cupboard that met legal requirements. Medication administration records (MAR) charts were generally completed appropriately. Where there had been an omission this was investigated and the registered manager ensured that the person concerned had received their medicine. We saw that the registered manager had sourced a new system for the administration of medicines from a local pharmacy who provided MAR charts with photographs of people and medicine labels on the boxes and individual pods in which medicine was stored for each time period of administration. This ensured that the risks of administering medication to the wrong person were minimised. Medicines were delivered in four week supplies and checked when delivered.

Appropriate arrangements were in place in relation to the handling of medicines. Medication audits were undertaken by the registered manager and where there had been issues identified following the previous inspection we saw that these had been addressed via memos to staff and in staff meetings. The contacted pharmacy had carried out an audit of medicines management in November 2014 and found the home was fully compliant with their audit process.

Staff had received training in medicines management. This training was supplied by the contacted pharmacy. Staff had also completed a training workbook that consolidated their learning about medicines management.

Medicines were safely administered. We observed a medicine round and saw that the medicine trolley was locked between each administration and individual medicines were clearly identified for each person. People were asked if they required their PRN (as required) medicines. The MAR charts were completed and signed after each person had received their medicine.

About CQC inspections

We are the regulator of health and social care in England.

All providers of regulated health and social care services have a legal responsibility to make sure they are meeting essential standards of quality and safety. These are the standards everyone should be able to expect when they receive care.

The essential standards are described in the Health and Social Care Act 2008 (Regulated Activities) Regulations 2010 and the Care Quality Commission (Registration) Regulations 2009. We regulate against these standards, which we sometimes describe as "government standards".

We carry out unannounced inspections of all care homes, acute hospitals and domiciliary care services in England at least once a year to judge whether or not the essential standards are being met. We carry out inspections of other services less often. All of our inspections are unannounced unless there is a good reason to let the provider know we are coming.

There are 16 essential standards that relate most directly to the quality and safety of care and these are grouped into five key areas. When we inspect we could check all or part of any of the 16 standards at any time depending on the individual circumstances of the service. Because of this we often check different standards at different times.

When we inspect, we always visit and we do things like observe how people are cared for, and we talk to people who use the service, to their carers and to staff. We also review information we have gathered about the provider, check the service's records and check whether the right systems and processes are in place.

We focus on whether or not the provider is meeting the standards and we are guided by whether people are experiencing the outcomes they should be able to expect when the standards are being met. By outcomes we mean the impact care has on the health, safety and welfare of people who use the service, and the experience they have whilst receiving it.

Our inspectors judge if any action is required by the provider of the service to improve the standard of care being provided. Where providers are non-compliant with the regulations, we take enforcement action against them. If we require a service to take action, or if we take enforcement action, we re-inspect it before its next routine inspection was due. This could mean we re-inspect a service several times in one year. We also might decide to re-inspect a service if new concerns emerge about it before the next routine inspection.

In between inspections we continually monitor information we have about providers. The information comes from the public, the provider, other organisations, and from care workers.

You can tell us about your experience of this provider on our website.

How we define our judgements

The following pages show our findings and regulatory judgement for each essential standard or part of the standard that we inspected. Our judgements are based on the ongoing review and analysis of the information gathered by CQC about this provider and the evidence collected during this inspection.

We reach one of the following judgements for each essential standard inspected.

✓ Met this standard This means that the standard was being met in that the provider was compliant with the regulation. If we find that standards were met, we take no regulatory action but we may make comments that may be useful to the provider and to the public about minor improvements that could be made.

✗ Action needed This means that the standard was not being met in that the provider was non-compliant with the regulation. We may have set a compliance action requiring the provider to produce a report setting out how and by when changes will be made to make sure they comply with the standard. We monitor the implementation of action plans in these reports and, if necessary, take further action. We may have identified a breach of a regulation which is more serious, and we will make sure action is taken. We will report on this when it is complete.

✗ Enforcement action taken If the breach of the regulation was more serious, or there have been several or continual breaches, we have a range of actions we take using the criminal and/or civil procedures in the Health and Social Care Act 2008 and relevant regulations. These enforcement powers include issuing a warning notice; restricting or suspending the services a provider can offer, or the number of people it can care for; issuing fines and formal cautions; in extreme cases, cancelling a provider or managers registration or prosecuting a manager or provider. These enforcement powers are set out in law and mean that we can take swift, targeted action where services are failing people.

Where we find non-compliance with a regulation (or part of a regulation), we state which part of the regulation has been breached. Only where there is non compliance with one or more of Regulations 9-24 of the Regulated Activity Regulations, will our report include a judgement about the level of impact on people who use the service (and others, if appropriate to the regulation). This could be a minor, moderate or major impact.

Minor impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had an impact on their health, safety or welfare or there was a risk of this happening. The impact was not significant and the matter could be managed or resolved quickly.

Moderate impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had a significant effect on their health, safety or welfare or there was a risk of this happening. The matter may need to be resolved quickly.

Major impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had a serious current or long term impact on their health, safety and welfare, or there was a risk of this happening. The matter needs to be resolved quickly

We decide the most appropriate action to take to ensure that the necessary changes are made. We always follow up to check whether action has been taken to meet the standards.
