Summary of this inspection

Why we carried out this inspection

We carried out this inspection to check whether Coundon Manor Care Home had taken action to meet the following essential standards:

- Management of medicines

This was an unannounced inspection.

How we carried out this inspection

We looked at the personal care or treatment records of people who use the service, carried out a visit on 11 November 2014, observed how people were being cared for and checked how people were cared for at each stage of their treatment and care. We talked with staff and were accompanied by a pharmacist.

What people told us and what we found

We visited the home to follow up on concerns we had about the management of medicines at our last inspection in September 2014.

At our last inspection we found concerns with the administration, storage, disposal and recording of medicines, which might have resulted in people not being fully protected against the risks associated with medicines.

During this visit we found effective systems were in place that ensured medicines were managed safely. Staff were able to assure people that their medicines were stored safely and people were found to be receiving their medicines in accordance with the prescriber's advice.

You can see our judgements on the front page of this report.

More information about the provider

Please see our website www.cqc.org.uk for more information, including our most recent judgements against the essential standards. You can contact us using the telephone number on the back of the report if you have additional questions.

There is a glossary at the back of this report which has definitions for words and phrases we use in the report.

Our judgements for each standard inspected

Management of medicines

✓ Met this standard

People should be given the medicines they need when they need them, and in a safe way

Our judgement

The provider was meeting this standard.

People were protected against the risks associated with medicines because the provider had appropriate arrangements in place to manage medicines.

Reasons for our judgement

Our previous inspection on 15 September 2014 had found concerns with the administration, storage, disposal and recording of medicines, which might have resulted in people not being fully protected against the risks associated with medicines.

We visited Coundon Manor on 11 November 2014 to see how medicines were being managed for the people who used the service. We looked at what arrangements the provider had for the recording, safe keeping, administering, and disposing of medicines to ensure that medicines were being managed safely.

Appropriate arrangements were in place in relation to obtaining medicines. We found that procedures in place for obtaining medicines continued to ensure that medicines were available for administration at the prescribed times. The availability of medicines ensured people who used the service received the treatments that had been prescribed by their doctor.

Arrangements were in place in relation to the recording of medicines. During this inspection we looked at ten out of 57 medicines administration records to see whether people received their medicines as prescribed by their doctor. Records demonstrated people received their medicines as prescribed. Appropriate arrangements for the recording of medicines meant that people's health and welfare was protected against the risk associated with the handling and administration of medicines.

Medicines were disposed of appropriately. We found that the provider had a robust system for recording the disposal of medicines. This meant these medicines could be accounted for and enabled the service to demonstrate their safe handling of medicines.

Medicines were administered safely. For example, we found antibiotics that required administration to people with an empty stomach were being administered appropriately. We found the service ensured that the analgesic skin patches were being applied in accordance with the manufacturer's instructions. The safe administration of medicines ensured people were protected against the risks associated with medicines.

We looked at the administration process for people who had their medicines delivered directly into their stomach through a tube. We found detailed written information was available on how and when medicines should be administered via these tubes. The provider was therefore able to demonstrate that the administration of medicines in this way was carried out in a safe and consistent manner by the nursing staff.

We found the information about how and when the 'when required' medicines should be given was robust. This ensured that these medicines were given appropriately by the nursing staff. Good information about how 'when required' medicines should be managed ensured that people got their medicines when they need them.

Medicines were kept safely. We found the service now ensured medicines were stored at the correct temperature. The storing of medicines at the correct temperature meant that they would be effective in treating the conditions they had been prescribed for.

About CQC inspections

We are the regulator of health and social care in England.

All providers of regulated health and social care services have a legal responsibility to make sure they are meeting essential standards of quality and safety. These are the standards everyone should be able to expect when they receive care.

The essential standards are described in the Health and Social Care Act 2008 (Regulated Activities) Regulations 2010 and the Care Quality Commission (Registration) Regulations 2009. We regulate against these standards, which we sometimes describe as "government standards".

We carry out unannounced inspections of all care homes, acute hospitals and domiciliary care services in England at least once a year to judge whether or not the essential standards are being met. We carry out inspections of other services less often. All of our inspections are unannounced unless there is a good reason to let the provider know we are coming.

There are 16 essential standards that relate most directly to the quality and safety of care and these are grouped into five key areas. When we inspect we could check all or part of any of the 16 standards at any time depending on the individual circumstances of the service. Because of this we often check different standards at different times.

When we inspect, we always visit and we do things like observe how people are cared for, and we talk to people who use the service, to their carers and to staff. We also review information we have gathered about the provider, check the service's records and check whether the right systems and processes are in place.

We focus on whether or not the provider is meeting the standards and we are guided by whether people are experiencing the outcomes they should be able to expect when the standards are being met. By outcomes we mean the impact care has on the health, safety and welfare of people who use the service, and the experience they have whilst receiving it.

Our inspectors judge if any action is required by the provider of the service to improve the standard of care being provided. Where providers are non-compliant with the regulations, we take enforcement action against them. If we require a service to take action, or if we take enforcement action, we re-inspect it before its next routine inspection was due. This could mean we re-inspect a service several times in one year. We also might decide to re-inspect a service if new concerns emerge about it before the next routine inspection.

In between inspections we continually monitor information we have about providers. The information comes from the public, the provider, other organisations, and from care workers.

You can tell us about your experience of this provider on our website.

How we define our judgements

The following pages show our findings and regulatory judgement for each essential standard or part of the standard that we inspected. Our judgements are based on the ongoing review and analysis of the information gathered by CQC about this provider and the evidence collected during this inspection.

We reach one of the following judgements for each essential standard inspected.

✓ Met this standard This means that the standard was being met in that the provider was compliant with the regulation. If we find that standards were met, we take no regulatory action but we may make comments that may be useful to the provider and to the public about minor improvements that could be made.

✗ Action needed This means that the standard was not being met in that the provider was non-compliant with the regulation. We may have set a compliance action requiring the provider to produce a report setting out how and by when changes will be made to make sure they comply with the standard. We monitor the implementation of action plans in these reports and, if necessary, take further action. We may have identified a breach of a regulation which is more serious, and we will make sure action is taken. We will report on this when it is complete.

✗ Enforcement action taken If the breach of the regulation was more serious, or there have been several or continual breaches, we have a range of actions we take using the criminal and/or civil procedures in the Health and Social Care Act 2008 and relevant regulations. These enforcement powers include issuing a warning notice; restricting or suspending the services a provider can offer, or the number of people it can care for; issuing fines and formal cautions; in extreme cases, cancelling a provider or managers registration or prosecuting a manager or provider. These enforcement powers are set out in law and mean that we can take swift, targeted action where services are failing people.

How we define our judgements (continued)

Where we find non-compliance with a regulation (or part of a regulation), we state which part of the regulation has been breached. Only where there is non compliance with one or more of Regulations 9-24 of the Regulated Activity Regulations, will our report include a judgement about the level of impact on people who use the service (and others, if appropriate to the regulation). This could be a minor, moderate or major impact.

Minor impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had an impact on their health, safety or welfare or there was a risk of this happening. The impact was not significant and the matter could be managed or resolved quickly.

---

Moderate impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had a significant effect on their health, safety or welfare or there was a risk of this happening. The matter may need to be resolved quickly.

---

Major impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had a serious current or long term impact on their health, safety and welfare, or there was a risk of this happening. The matter needs to be resolved quickly

---

We decide the most appropriate action to take to ensure that the necessary changes are made. We always follow up to check whether action has been taken to meet the standards.
