We carried out an announced focused inspection at Felixstowe Road Medical Practice on 4 November 2019. This inspection was to follow up on the breaches of regulation identified at the previous inspection.

We based our judgement of the quality of care at this service on a combination of:

- what we found when we inspected
- information from our ongoing monitoring of data about services and
- information from the provider, patients, the public and other organisations.

The practice is rated as good overall, good for providing safe services and good for the population group people experiencing poor mental health (including people with dementia).

We found that:

- Improvements had been made to the recruitment system and appropriate checks had been completed.
- An overdue five year hardwiring electrical check had now been undertaken and essential actions completed.
- Improvements had been made to ensure safe prescribing of medicines and the number of prescription items for co-amoxiclav, cephalosporins and quinolones had been reduced in response to national good practice guidance.
- Improvements had been made to ensure all patients received appropriate follow up in a timely manner. In particular, we saw that the number of patients with mental health needs who were excepted from the quality and outcomes framework (QoF) had been reduced.
- All complaints were acknowledged, and complainants were informed of their right to refer their complaint to the Parliamentary Health Service Ombudsman.

Details of our findings and the evidence supporting our ratings are set out in the evidence tables.
