Summary of this inspection

Why we carried out this inspection

We carried out this inspection to check whether Ayrshire House had taken action to meet the following essential standards:

- Care and welfare of people who use services

This was an unannounced inspection.

How we carried out this inspection

We looked at the personal care or treatment records of people who use the service, carried out a visit on 11 February 2013 and talked with staff.

What people told us and what we found

During this inspection we checked to see if the provider had complied with actions we took following our last inspection in November 2012. We reviewed all the information we had received from the provider including an action plan they sent us in November 2012 detailing how they would become compliant.

We did not speak with people who used the service at this inspection. We spoke with the registered manager, two members of staff and looked at three people's care plan records.

We found the provider had developed and was using new care plan documentation. The support plans we looked at showed people's needs were assessed in a way that reflected their individual strengths, abilities and interests. This meant that staff had information and direction about how to meet people's individual needs.

You can see our judgements on the front page of this report.

More information about the provider

Please see our website www.cqc.org.uk for more information, including our most recent judgements against the essential standards. You can contact us using the telephone number on the back of the report if you have additional questions.

There is a glossary at the back of this report which has definitions for words and phrases we use in the report.

Our judgements for each standard inspected

Care and welfare of people who use services

✓ Met this standard

People should get safe and appropriate care that meets their needs and supports their rights

Our judgement

The provider was meeting this standard.

People experienced care, treatment and support that met their needs and protected their rights.

Reasons for our judgement

Following our last inspection in November 2012 we set a compliance action because there were moderate concerns that people who used the service did not have detailed care plans in place. People were at risk of not receiving the care and treatment they required.

We checked to see if the provider had carried out the required actions. We looked at three people's care plan records. A care plan is a document which details people's assessed social and health care needs and informs staff how to meet those needs.

We saw the provider had developed and was using new care plan documentation. The care plans we saw clearly recorded people's assessed needs and advised staff how to support people to have their individual needs met.

People's needs were assessed and care and treatment was planned and delivered in line with their individual care plan. The support plans we looked at showed people's needs were assessed in a way that reflected their strengths, abilities and interests. This meant that staff had a person-centred approach to the assessment of people's needs and to the way people were supported.

The care plan records we viewed also showed how people were supported to maintain their independence. For example, if a person was independent with any aspect of their personal care, this was recorded with sufficient information for staff should this person require assistance.

We saw care plans were reviewed yearly or earlier if required. This meant there were systems in place to ensure care plan records were up to date and reflective of people's needs. It also demonstrated care and treatment was planned and delivered in a way that was intended to ensure people's safety and welfare.

The provider may find it useful to note that the care plan records we viewed did not include a signature of the person and/or their representative. The registered manager told us that they had included the person in the development of the care plan. However, there were no signatures to demonstrate the person and/or their relative is in full agreement with the care plan.

People's care and support reflected relevant research and guidance. We saw in people's care plan documentation there was information advising staff of the person's diagnosed health needs. For example, we saw information about diabetes in one person's care plan information. The information guidance provided enabled staff to develop their knowledge and understanding about the various health needs specific for the people they supported.

About CQC inspections

We are the regulator of health and social care in England.

All providers of regulated health and social care services have a legal responsibility to make sure they are meeting essential standards of quality and safety. These are the standards everyone should be able to expect when they receive care.

The essential standards are described in the Health and Social Care Act 2008 (Regulated Activities) Regulations 2010 and the Care Quality Commission (Registration) Regulations 2009. We regulate against these standards, which we sometimes describe as "government standards".

We carry out unannounced inspections of all care homes, acute hospitals and domiciliary care services in England at least once a year to judge whether or not the essential standards are being met. We carry out inspections of dentists and other services at least once every two years. All of our inspections are unannounced unless there is a good reason to let the provider know we are coming.

There are 16 essential standards that relate most directly to the quality and safety of care and these are grouped into five key areas. When we inspect we could check all or part of any of the 16 standards at any time depending on the individual circumstances of the service. Because of this we often check different standards at different times but we always inspect at least one standard from each of the five key areas every year. We may check fewer key areas in the case of dentists and some other services.

When we inspect, we always visit and we do things like observe how people are cared for, and we talk to people who use the service, to their carers and to staff. We also review information we have gathered about the provider, check the service's records and check whether the right systems and processes are in place.

We focus on whether or not the provider is meeting the standards and we are guided by whether people are experiencing the outcomes they should be able to expect when the standards are being met. By outcomes we mean the impact care has on the health, safety and welfare of people who use the service, and the experience they have whilst receiving it.

Our inspectors judge if any action is required by the provider of the service to improve the standard of care being provided. Where providers are non-compliant with the regulations, we take enforcement action against them. If we require a service to take action, or if we take enforcement action, we re-inspect it before its next routine inspection was due. This could mean we re-inspect a service several times in one year. We also might decide to re-inspect a service if new concerns emerge about it before the next routine inspection.

In between inspections we continually monitor information we have about providers. The information comes from the public, the provider, other organisations, and from care workers.

You can tell us about your experience of this provider on our website.

How we define our judgements

The following pages show our findings and regulatory judgement for each essential standard or part of the standard that we inspected. Our judgements are based on the ongoing review and analysis of the information gathered by CQC about this provider and the evidence collected during this inspection.

We reach one of the following judgements for each essential standard inspected.

✓ Met this standard This means that the standard was being met in that the provider was compliant with the regulation. If we find that standards were met, we take no regulatory action but we may make comments that may be useful to the provider and to the public about minor improvements that could be made.

✗ Action needed This means that the standard was not being met in that the provider was non-compliant with the regulation. We may have set a compliance action requiring the provider to produce a report setting out how and by when changes will be made to make sure they comply with the standard. We monitor the implementation of action plans in these reports and, if necessary, take further action. We may have identified a breach of a regulation which is more serious, and we will make sure action is taken. We will report on this when it is complete.

✗ Enforcement action taken If the breach of the regulation was more serious, or there have been several or continual breaches, we have a range of actions we take using the criminal and/or civil procedures in the Health and Social Care Act 2008 and relevant regulations. These enforcement powers include issuing a warning notice; restricting or suspending the services a provider can offer, or the number of people it can care for; issuing fines and formal cautions; in extreme cases, cancelling a provider or managers registration or prosecuting a manager or provider. These enforcement powers are set out in law and mean that we can take swift, targeted action where services are failing people.

Where we find non-compliance with a regulation (or part of a regulation), we state which part of the regulation has been breached. We make a judgement about the level of impact on people who use the service (and others, if appropriate to the regulation) from the breach. This could be a minor, moderate or major impact.

Minor impact – people who use the service experienced poor care that had an impact on their health, safety or welfare or there was a risk of this happening. The impact was not significant and the matter could be managed or resolved quickly.

Moderate impact – people who use the service experienced poor care that had a significant effect on their health, safety or welfare or there was a risk of this happening. The matter may need to be resolved quickly.

Major impact – people who use the service experienced poor care that had a serious current or long term impact on their health, safety and welfare, or there was a risk of this happening. The matter needs to be resolved quickly

We decide the most appropriate action to take to ensure that the necessary changes are made. We always follow up to check whether action has been taken to meet the standards.
