Summary of this inspection

Why we carried out this inspection

We carried out this inspection to check whether St Marks House had taken action to meet the following essential standards:

- Management of medicines

This was an unannounced inspection.

How we carried out this inspection

We looked at the personal care or treatment records of people who use the service, carried out a visit on 20 March 2014, talked with people who use the service and talked with staff. We reviewed information sent to us by commissioners of services.

What people told us and what we found

There were 16 people living in the service at this inspection. We looked at all of the medicine administration records and randomly selected six people's records to check that medicines had been given as prescribed. We also looked at how the service stored and managed medicines.

One person who looked after their medicines told us, "I am happy looking after my medicines. I know what they are all for". We found that the service enabled people to manage their own medicines following a risk assessment process.

A pharmacist from NHS Dudley Clinical Commissioning Group (CCG) visited the home from January to February 2014 to support the service with safe medicine management. We were shown a copy of their last report dated 12 February 2014 which stated, 'service users can be confident that medication systems allow safe, timely and consistent access to their medications and the provider demonstrates good insight into managing their medication systems'. The Manager told us that systems for medicine management had improved. This included undertaking regular checks on medicine records to identify any problems and to ensure staff followed safe medicine procedures. At this inspection, we found improvements had been undertaken with arrangements in place to ensure that medicines were managed safely.

You can see our judgements on the front page of this report.

More information about the provider

Our judgements for each standard inspected

Management of medicines

✓ Met this standard

People should be given the medicines they need when they need them, and in a safe way

Our judgement

The provider was meeting this standard.

People were protected against the risks associated with medicines because the provider was ensuring that appropriate arrangements were in place to manage medicines.

Reasons for our judgement

We looked at the medicine administration records for six people living in the home including the storage and management of medicines. At this inspection we found appropriate arrangements were being undertaken to manage the risks associated with the unsafe use and management of medicines.

Medicines were securely locked in a medicine store room with medicine keys held by the person in charge. We found medicine storage was neat and tidy, which made it easy to find people's prescribed medicines. Daily temperature records were available for the medicine store room which were within the recommended storage range for medicines. This meant that arrangements were in place for the safe and secure storage of people's medicines.

Arrangements were in place to obtain, administer and record people's medicines. Medicines were ordered and obtained from a local pharmacy. We checked six people's medicine administration records, which had been signed for administration or a reason was documented to explain why a medicine had not been given.

Systems were also in place to ensure that checks could be made on medicine management. We were also told that regular medicine checks were being carried out. We found that these arrangements ensured that the service was making sure that people were being given their medicines as prescribed.

People who looked after their own medicines were safe from harm. We saw dated risk assessments which ensured that the necessary checks were undertaken for people to look after their own medicines.

The provider may wish to note that supporting information on how people preferred to be given their medicines was not available with their medicine administration. This meant that staff might not have all the required information available in order to give people their prescribed medicines. A medicine procedure was available which detailed how medicines should be managed, the manager told us it had recently been updated and the date would be included.

About CQC inspections

We are the regulator of health and social care in England.

All providers of regulated health and social care services have a legal responsibility to make sure they are meeting essential standards of quality and safety. These are the standards everyone should be able to expect when they receive care.

The essential standards are described in the Health and Social Care Act 2008 (Regulated Activities) Regulations 2010 and the Care Quality Commission (Registration) Regulations 2009. We regulate against these standards, which we sometimes describe as "government standards".

We carry out unannounced inspections of all care homes, acute hospitals and domiciliary care services in England at least once a year to judge whether or not the essential standards are being met. We carry out inspections of other services less often. All of our inspections are unannounced unless there is a good reason to let the provider know we are coming.

There are 16 essential standards that relate most directly to the quality and safety of care and these are grouped into five key areas. When we inspect we could check all or part of any of the 16 standards at any time depending on the individual circumstances of the service. Because of this we often check different standards at different times.

When we inspect, we always visit and we do things like observe how people are cared for, and we talk to people who use the service, to their carers and to staff. We also review information we have gathered about the provider, check the service's records and check whether the right systems and processes are in place.

We focus on whether or not the provider is meeting the standards and we are guided by whether people are experiencing the outcomes they should be able to expect when the standards are being met. By outcomes we mean the impact care has on the health, safety and welfare of people who use the service, and the experience they have whilst receiving it.

Our inspectors judge if any action is required by the provider of the service to improve the standard of care being provided. Where providers are non-compliant with the regulations, we take enforcement action against them. If we require a service to take action, or if we take enforcement action, we re-inspect it before its next routine inspection was due. This could mean we re-inspect a service several times in one year. We also might decide to re-inspect a service if new concerns emerge about it before the next routine inspection.

In between inspections we continually monitor information we have about providers. The information comes from the public, the provider, other organisations, and from care workers.

You can tell us about your experience of this provider on our website.

How we define our judgements

The following pages show our findings and regulatory judgement for each essential standard or part of the standard that we inspected. Our judgements are based on the ongoing review and analysis of the information gathered by CQC about this provider and the evidence collected during this inspection.

We reach one of the following judgements for each essential standard inspected.

 Met this standard This means that the standard was being met in that the provider was compliant with the regulation. If we find that standards were met, we take no regulatory action but we may make comments that may be useful to the provider and to the public about minor improvements that could be made.

 Action needed This means that the standard was not being met in that the provider was non-compliant with the regulation. We may have set a compliance action requiring the provider to produce a report setting out how and by when changes will be made to make sure they comply with the standard. We monitor the implementation of action plans in these reports and, if necessary, take further action. We may have identified a breach of a regulation which is more serious, and we will make sure action is taken. We will report on this when it is complete.

 Enforcement action taken If the breach of the regulation was more serious, or there have been several or continual breaches, we have a range of actions we take using the criminal and/or civil procedures in the Health and Social Care Act 2008 and relevant regulations. These enforcement powers include issuing a warning notice; restricting or suspending the services a provider can offer, or the number of people it can care for; issuing fines and formal cautions; in extreme cases, cancelling a provider or managers registration or prosecuting a manager or provider. These enforcement powers are set out in law and mean that we can take swift, targeted action where services are failing people.

Where we find non-compliance with a regulation (or part of a regulation), we state which part of the regulation has been breached. Only where there is non compliance with one or more of Regulations 9-24 of the Regulated Activity Regulations, will our report include a judgement about the level of impact on people who use the service (and others, if appropriate to the regulation). This could be a minor, moderate or major impact.

Minor impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had an impact on their health, safety or welfare or there was a risk of this happening. The impact was not significant and the matter could be managed or resolved quickly.

Moderate impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had a significant effect on their health, safety or welfare or there was a risk of this happening. The matter may need to be resolved quickly.

Major impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had a serious current or long term impact on their health, safety and welfare, or there was a risk of this happening. The matter needs to be resolved quickly

We decide the most appropriate action to take to ensure that the necessary changes are made. We always follow up to check whether action has been taken to meet the standards.
