Summary of this inspection

Why we carried out this inspection

We carried out this inspection to check whether Crossways had taken action to meet the following essential standards:

- Requirements relating to workers

This was an unannounced inspection.

How we carried out this inspection

We carried out a visit on 14 January 2014, talked with staff and reviewed information given to us by the provider.

What people told us and what we found

We conducted this inspection to follow up concerns identified at our previous inspection which was carried out on 8 October 2013. Our previous inspection found that suitable recruitment arrangements were not in place.

As a result of the October 2013 inspection we required that the provider supply us with an improvement action plan, which we received. This plan told us what improvements would be made and when they would be completed by. This follow up inspection was carried out to establish whether improvements had been made.

We found that staff files had been updated to ensure that all required information was present. These records had also been re-organised and all staff files followed the same format. Recruitment and interviewing guidance/prompts were available. We also noted that a recruitment and selection checklist was being used to ensure all necessary steps were taken when employing staff.

We were satisfied that, due to the improvements made, people were protected from the risks associated with the employment of staff because appropriate recruitment arrangements were in place.

You can see our judgements on the front page of this report.

More information about the provider

Please see our website www.cqc.org.uk for more information, including our most recent judgements against the essential standards. You can contact us using the telephone number on the back of the report if you have additional questions.

There is a glossary at the back of this report which has definitions for words and phrases we use in the report.

Our judgements for each standard inspected

Requirements relating to workers

✓ Met this standard

People should be cared for by staff who are properly qualified and able to do their job

Our judgement

The provider was meeting this standard.

People were cared for, or supported by, suitably qualified, skilled and experienced staff.

Reasons for our judgement

We looked at records for five staff members to ascertain whether effective recruitment processes were in place. In October 2013 we found that, although the home had photographs for all staff members, they had not been utilised for staff records. At this inspection we noted that staff records commenced with a photograph and a summary of relevant information.

In October 2013 we found that two staff records did not contain any form of identification. All files we reviewed during this inspection contained proof of identity. Where photographic identification was not available suitable forms of other identification were present.

Our previous inspection did not find application forms in any of the staff files we looked at. This meant that there was a lack of evidence of staff employment histories or backgrounds to ascertain what qualifications or skills they had. We were also unable to identify whether there were any gaps in staff backgrounds that required exploration. We discussed this with the manager and assistant manager at the time. At this inspection we found that staff records had retrospective application forms or a curriculum vitae. We noted procedures which showed that information packs issued to job applicants were to include an application form, person specification and job description.

Suitable and sufficient references were found on the five records that we looked at during this inspection. At our last inspection we noted that sometimes only one reference had been received prior to the person starting work. We saw from the recruitment and selection procedures in place that offers of employment would not be confirmed until satisfactory references were received and recorded.

Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) checks indicated that all five staff members had no criminal convictions and were suitable to work with vulnerable people.

We were satisfied that the improvements made meant that people were protected from the risks associated with the employment of staff. Appropriate recruitment arrangements were in place.

About CQC inspections

We are the regulator of health and social care in England.

All providers of regulated health and social care services have a legal responsibility to make sure they are meeting essential standards of quality and safety. These are the standards everyone should be able to expect when they receive care.

The essential standards are described in the Health and Social Care Act 2008 (Regulated Activities) Regulations 2010 and the Care Quality Commission (Registration) Regulations 2009. We regulate against these standards, which we sometimes describe as "government standards".

We carry out unannounced inspections of all care homes, acute hospitals and domiciliary care services in England at least once a year to judge whether or not the essential standards are being met. We carry out inspections of other services less often. All of our inspections are unannounced unless there is a good reason to let the provider know we are coming.

There are 16 essential standards that relate most directly to the quality and safety of care and these are grouped into five key areas. When we inspect we could check all or part of any of the 16 standards at any time depending on the individual circumstances of the service. Because of this we often check different standards at different times.

When we inspect, we always visit and we do things like observe how people are cared for, and we talk to people who use the service, to their carers and to staff. We also review information we have gathered about the provider, check the service's records and check whether the right systems and processes are in place.

We focus on whether or not the provider is meeting the standards and we are guided by whether people are experiencing the outcomes they should be able to expect when the standards are being met. By outcomes we mean the impact care has on the health, safety and welfare of people who use the service, and the experience they have whilst receiving it.

Our inspectors judge if any action is required by the provider of the service to improve the standard of care being provided. Where providers are non-compliant with the regulations, we take enforcement action against them. If we require a service to take action, or if we take enforcement action, we re-inspect it before its next routine inspection was due. This could mean we re-inspect a service several times in one year. We also might decide to re-inspect a service if new concerns emerge about it before the next routine inspection.

In between inspections we continually monitor information we have about providers. The information comes from the public, the provider, other organisations, and from care workers.

You can tell us about your experience of this provider on our website.

How we define our judgements

The following pages show our findings and regulatory judgement for each essential standard or part of the standard that we inspected. Our judgements are based on the ongoing review and analysis of the information gathered by CQC about this provider and the evidence collected during this inspection.

We reach one of the following judgements for each essential standard inspected.

 Met this standard This means that the standard was being met in that the provider was compliant with the regulation. If we find that standards were met, we take no regulatory action but we may make comments that may be useful to the provider and to the public about minor improvements that could be made.

 Action needed This means that the standard was not being met in that the provider was non-compliant with the regulation. We may have set a compliance action requiring the provider to produce a report setting out how and by when changes will be made to make sure they comply with the standard. We monitor the implementation of action plans in these reports and, if necessary, take further action. We may have identified a breach of a regulation which is more serious, and we will make sure action is taken. We will report on this when it is complete.

 Enforcement action taken If the breach of the regulation was more serious, or there have been several or continual breaches, we have a range of actions we take using the criminal and/or civil procedures in the Health and Social Care Act 2008 and relevant regulations. These enforcement powers include issuing a warning notice; restricting or suspending the services a provider can offer, or the number of people it can care for; issuing fines and formal cautions; in extreme cases, cancelling a provider or managers registration or prosecuting a manager or provider. These enforcement powers are set out in law and mean that we can take swift, targeted action where services are failing people.

Where we find non-compliance with a regulation (or part of a regulation), we state which part of the regulation has been breached. Only where there is non compliance with one or more of Regulations 9-24 of the Regulated Activity Regulations, will our report include a judgement about the level of impact on people who use the service (and others, if appropriate to the regulation). This could be a minor, moderate or major impact.

Minor impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had an impact on their health, safety or welfare or there was a risk of this happening. The impact was not significant and the matter could be managed or resolved quickly.

Moderate impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had a significant effect on their health, safety or welfare or there was a risk of this happening. The matter may need to be resolved quickly.

Major impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had a serious current or long term impact on their health, safety and welfare, or there was a risk of this happening. The matter needs to be resolved quickly

We decide the most appropriate action to take to ensure that the necessary changes are made. We always follow up to check whether action has been taken to meet the standards.
