Summary of this inspection

Why we carried out this inspection

This was a routine inspection to check that essential standards of quality and safety referred to on the front page were being met. We sometimes describe this as a scheduled inspection.

This was an announced inspection.

How we carried out this inspection

We looked at the personal care or treatment records of people who use the service, carried out a visit on 6 September 2013, observed how people were being cared for and talked with people who use the service. We talked with staff.

What people told us and what we found

During our visit to the practice we spoke to people who used the service and spoke to staff. We reviewed records for various elements of the service. We observed good staff interaction with people who used the service and we observed that people were treated in a dignified manner. People told us that they were satisfied with the way the practice was run and the service that was provided. One person told us "The expertise and efficiency of the dentist and staff have been most impressive". People also confirmed they had the consultation procedure, fees and treatments explained to them, and the records that we reviewed confirmed this to be the case. The information that was provided to people included any risks attached to the treatments discussed as well as the benefits. People said the practice was "well kept" and that the dentists and staff were very "patient" with nervous patients.

You can see our judgements on the front page of this report.

More information about the provider

Please see our website www.cqc.org.uk for more information, including our most recent judgements against the essential standards. You can contact us using the telephone number on the back of the report if you have additional questions.

There is a glossary at the back of this report which has definitions for words and phrases we use in the report.

Our judgements for each standard inspected

Care and welfare of people who use services

✓ Met this standard

People should get safe and appropriate care that meets their needs and supports their rights

Our judgement

The provider was meeting this standard.

Care and treatment was planned and delivered in a way that was intended to ensure people's safety and welfare.

Reasons for our judgement

Care and treatment was planned and delivered in a way that ensured people's safety and welfare. People told us that they were very happy with the care, support and treatment they received. People told us the service was delivered efficiently and in a reassuring way. People told us they felt comfortable at the practice and never had any concerns.

Care and treatment plans contained relevant information and a cost estimate for the treatment options that had been discussed. Medical histories were recorded at the first visit and were updated each time the patient attended thereafter. This meant that people received treatment that was safe and appropriate to their individual needs.

People should be protected from abuse and staff should respect their human rights

Our judgement

The provider was meeting this standard.

People who use the service were protected from the risk of abuse, because the provider had taken reasonable steps to identify the possibility of abuse and prevent abuse from happening.

Reasons for our judgement

People who used the service were protected from the risk of abuse, because the provider had taken reasonable steps to identify the possibility of abuse and prevent abuse from happening.

The practice manager was the safeguarding lead. We saw the practice had a safeguarding policy and procedure. This was easy to understand and contained the relevant information required. There was also a contact information list on the wall of the various surgeries throughout the practice. This meant that staff were constantly reminded of their responsibility to ensure people were not put at risk of unsafe care or treatment. All staff had attended safeguarding training at level one or two and further refresher training was being arranged. There were no current safeguarding alerts.

All personal information was kept securely on a computerised system or in locked filing cabinets. Risk assessments were completed where required for example we saw evidence that the practice environmental risk assessment had been completed. We were shown the positive results of the recent portable appliance testing (PAT).

Staff had been trained in resuscitation and defibrillation.

People should be cared for in a clean environment and protected from the risk of infection

Our judgement

The provider was meeting this standard.

People were protected from the risk of infection because appropriate guidance had been followed.

Reasons for our judgement

There were effective systems in place to reduce the risk and spread of infection. During our tour of the practice, the provider and practice manager demonstrated that there were effective systems in place to reduce the risk and spread of infection.

The reception, treatment and decontamination rooms were clean, tidy and well maintained. There were separate sinks used for hand washing and used instruments. The dental chairs were clean and well maintained. Staff had received mandatory training, these were regularly updated and they included instrument decontamination and cross infection control.

The practice had a decontamination process in place, this was followed after each patient and included manually checking all instruments after the washing phase and ensuring any residual matter was cleaned and removed before sterilisation.

The practice had an infection control process in place at the beginning of the day this included checking sterilizers and equipment decontamination readings. There was a cycle of cleanliness in place that ensured clean instruments were not contaminated by dirty ones. Regular infection control audits were also recorded.

Assessing and monitoring the quality of service provision

✓ Met this standard

The service should have quality checking systems to manage risks and assure the health, welfare and safety of people who receive care

Our judgement

The provider was meeting this standard.

The provider had an effective system in place to identify, assess and manage risks to the health, safety and welfare of people who use the service and others.

Reasons for our judgement

We were shown all the quality monitoring records relating to the service. These included the annual survey results which had all been analysed and evaluated and action plans were in place to address any negative feedback. There was also a system in place to implement suggestions that people had made

The equipment used at the practice was serviced by contracted engineers as required including the X-ray that was checked annually.

The clinical waste was appropriately stored and removed under a contract which was in place with a local provider.

Staff were provided with uniforms and appropriate equipment to carry out their duties.

About CQC inspections

We are the regulator of health and social care in England.

All providers of regulated health and social care services have a legal responsibility to make sure they are meeting essential standards of quality and safety. These are the standards everyone should be able to expect when they receive care.

The essential standards are described in the Health and Social Care Act 2008 (Regulated Activities) Regulations 2010 and the Care Quality Commission (Registration) Regulations 2009. We regulate against these standards, which we sometimes describe as "government standards".

We carry out unannounced inspections of all care homes, acute hospitals and domiciliary care services in England at least once a year to judge whether or not the essential standards are being met. We carry out inspections of other services less often. All of our inspections are unannounced unless there is a good reason to let the provider know we are coming.

There are 16 essential standards that relate most directly to the quality and safety of care and these are grouped into five key areas. When we inspect we could check all or part of any of the 16 standards at any time depending on the individual circumstances of the service. Because of this we often check different standards at different times.

When we inspect, we always visit and we do things like observe how people are cared for, and we talk to people who use the service, to their carers and to staff. We also review information we have gathered about the provider, check the service's records and check whether the right systems and processes are in place.

We focus on whether or not the provider is meeting the standards and we are guided by whether people are experiencing the outcomes they should be able to expect when the standards are being met. By outcomes we mean the impact care has on the health, safety and welfare of people who use the service, and the experience they have whilst receiving it.

Our inspectors judge if any action is required by the provider of the service to improve the standard of care being provided. Where providers are non-compliant with the regulations, we take enforcement action against them. If we require a service to take action, or if we take enforcement action, we re-inspect it before its next routine inspection was due. This could mean we re-inspect a service several times in one year. We also might decide to re-inspect a service if new concerns emerge about it before the next routine inspection.

In between inspections we continually monitor information we have about providers. The information comes from the public, the provider, other organisations, and from care workers.

You can tell us about your experience of this provider on our website.

How we define our judgements

The following pages show our findings and regulatory judgement for each essential standard or part of the standard that we inspected. Our judgements are based on the ongoing review and analysis of the information gathered by CQC about this provider and the evidence collected during this inspection.

We reach one of the following judgements for each essential standard inspected.

✓ Met this standard This means that the standard was being met in that the provider was compliant with the regulation. If we find that standards were met, we take no regulatory action but we may make comments that may be useful to the provider and to the public about minor improvements that could be made.

✗ Action needed This means that the standard was not being met in that the provider was non-compliant with the regulation. We may have set a compliance action requiring the provider to produce a report setting out how and by when changes will be made to make sure they comply with the standard. We monitor the implementation of action plans in these reports and, if necessary, take further action. We may have identified a breach of a regulation which is more serious, and we will make sure action is taken. We will report on this when it is complete.

✗ Enforcement action taken If the breach of the regulation was more serious, or there have been several or continual breaches, we have a range of actions we take using the criminal and/or civil procedures in the Health and Social Care Act 2008 and relevant regulations. These enforcement powers include issuing a warning notice; restricting or suspending the services a provider can offer, or the number of people it can care for; issuing fines and formal cautions; in extreme cases, cancelling a provider or managers registration or prosecuting a manager or provider. These enforcement powers are set out in law and mean that we can take swift, targeted action where services are failing people.

Where we find non-compliance with a regulation (or part of a regulation), we state which part of the regulation has been breached. Only where there is non compliance with one or more of Regulations 9-24 of the Regulated Activity Regulations, will our report include a judgement about the level of impact on people who use the service (and others, if appropriate to the regulation). This could be a minor, moderate or major impact.

Minor impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had an impact on their health, safety or welfare or there was a risk of this happening. The impact was not significant and the matter could be managed or resolved quickly.

Moderate impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had a significant effect on their health, safety or welfare or there was a risk of this happening. The matter may need to be resolved quickly.

Major impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had a serious current or long term impact on their health, safety and welfare, or there was a risk of this happening. The matter needs to be resolved quickly

We decide the most appropriate action to take to ensure that the necessary changes are made. We always follow up to check whether action has been taken to meet the standards.
