Summary of this inspection

Why we carried out this inspection

This was a routine inspection to check that essential standards of quality and safety referred to on the front page were being met. We sometimes describe this as a scheduled inspection.

This was an unannounced inspection.

How we carried out this inspection

We carried out a visit on 11 October 2013 and reviewed information given to us by the provider.

What people told us and what we found

Following our previous inspection of this service on 22 April 2013 we found two essential standards were not being met. We instructed the provider to make improvements in these areas and carried out this follow up inspection to check that the necessary action had been taken.

The provider had made the improvements we has asked for. Staff had completed their annual mandatory training so their skills and knowledge were up to date. The provider was meeting the requirement to inform the Care Quality Commission if there was a death of any person who used the service.

You can see our judgements on the front page of this report.

More information about the provider

Please see our website www.cqc.org.uk for more information, including our most recent judgements against the essential standards. You can contact us using the telephone number on the back of the report if you have additional questions.

There is a glossary at the back of this report which has definitions for words and phrases we use in the report.

Our judgements for each standard inspected

Supporting workers

✓ Met this standard

Staff should be properly trained and supervised, and have the chance to develop and improve their skills

Our judgement

The provider was meeting this standard.

People were cared for by staff who were supported to deliver care and treatment safely and to an appropriate standard. This is because they completed essential training to ensure that their skills and knowledge remained up to date.

Reasons for our judgement

Following our previous inspection of this service on 22 April 2013 we found the provider was not meeting this standard. This was because not all staff had received appropriate professional development. Some staff had not received the up to date training they should have had in safeguarding, fire safety and infection control and at the time of our inspection no arrangements had been made to address all these gaps. We instructed the provider to make improvements in this area and carried out this follow up inspection to check that the necessary action had been taken.

We reviewed the provider's training records and these confirmed that all staff had completed their annual mandatory training. This meant that staff had regular training to help ensure that their skills and knowledge remained up to date and relevant to their roles. There was one newly appointed member of staff in post who was on induction and working through the training programme, therefore their training was not yet fully complete.

The provider had detailed training data available to assist them in monitoring whether staff training was up to date and when refresher training was due. This information was checked by the manager on a regular basis who then reported on this to their own manager, the quality manager. We saw that some people were due to refresh some of their non mandatory training to ensure that their knowledge remained up to date. The manager of the home had written to these staff to remind them of their responsibility to do this. This demonstrated that the provider audited training records to help ensure that training was refreshed and updated as necessary.

Notification of death of a person who uses services ✓ Met this standard

Adult social care and independent healthcare services must tell us when somebody dies in their care. NHS services must tell us when somebody dies because they have not been given the right care

Our judgement

The provider was meeting this standard.

The provider notified the Care Quality Commission without delay of the deaths of people who they were providing services to.

Reasons for our judgement

Following our previous inspection of this service on 22 April 2013 we found the provider was not meeting this standard. This was because the provider had not notified the Care Quality Commission when people using the service had died, which should have been done. We instructed the provider to make improvements in this area and carried out this follow up inspection to check that the necessary action had been taken.

Since our previous inspection we had received one statutory notification of a death of a person who used the service. When we visited we spoke with the manager who confirmed that this had been the only death in the intervening period. The manager also confirmed that she understood the requirements to inform the Care Quality Commission of this incidents and that this would be done when required. This showed that the provider was meeting the requirement to notify the Care Quality Commission of a death of any person who used the service.

About CQC inspections

We are the regulator of health and social care in England.

All providers of regulated health and social care services have a legal responsibility to make sure they are meeting essential standards of quality and safety. These are the standards everyone should be able to expect when they receive care.

The essential standards are described in the Health and Social Care Act 2008 (Regulated Activities) Regulations 2010 and the Care Quality Commission (Registration) Regulations 2009. We regulate against these standards, which we sometimes describe as "government standards".

We carry out unannounced inspections of all care homes, acute hospitals and domiciliary care services in England at least once a year to judge whether or not the essential standards are being met. We carry out inspections of other services less often. All of our inspections are unannounced unless there is a good reason to let the provider know we are coming.

There are 16 essential standards that relate most directly to the quality and safety of care and these are grouped into five key areas. When we inspect we could check all or part of any of the 16 standards at any time depending on the individual circumstances of the service. Because of this we often check different standards at different times.

When we inspect, we always visit and we do things like observe how people are cared for, and we talk to people who use the service, to their carers and to staff. We also review information we have gathered about the provider, check the service's records and check whether the right systems and processes are in place.

We focus on whether or not the provider is meeting the standards and we are guided by whether people are experiencing the outcomes they should be able to expect when the standards are being met. By outcomes we mean the impact care has on the health, safety and welfare of people who use the service, and the experience they have whilst receiving it.

Our inspectors judge if any action is required by the provider of the service to improve the standard of care being provided. Where providers are non-compliant with the regulations, we take enforcement action against them. If we require a service to take action, or if we take enforcement action, we re-inspect it before its next routine inspection was due. This could mean we re-inspect a service several times in one year. We also might decide to re-inspect a service if new concerns emerge about it before the next routine inspection.

In between inspections we continually monitor information we have about providers. The information comes from the public, the provider, other organisations, and from care workers.

You can tell us about your experience of this provider on our website.

How we define our judgements

The following pages show our findings and regulatory judgement for each essential standard or part of the standard that we inspected. Our judgements are based on the ongoing review and analysis of the information gathered by CQC about this provider and the evidence collected during this inspection.

We reach one of the following judgements for each essential standard inspected.

 Met this standard This means that the standard was being met in that the provider was compliant with the regulation. If we find that standards were met, we take no regulatory action but we may make comments that may be useful to the provider and to the public about minor improvements that could be made.

 Action needed This means that the standard was not being met in that the provider was non-compliant with the regulation. We may have set a compliance action requiring the provider to produce a report setting out how and by when changes will be made to make sure they comply with the standard. We monitor the implementation of action plans in these reports and, if necessary, take further action. We may have identified a breach of a regulation which is more serious, and we will make sure action is taken. We will report on this when it is complete.

 Enforcement action taken If the breach of the regulation was more serious, or there have been several or continual breaches, we have a range of actions we take using the criminal and/or civil procedures in the Health and Social Care Act 2008 and relevant regulations. These enforcement powers include issuing a warning notice; restricting or suspending the services a provider can offer, or the number of people it can care for; issuing fines and formal cautions; in extreme cases, cancelling a provider or managers registration or prosecuting a manager or provider. These enforcement powers are set out in law and mean that we can take swift, targeted action where services are failing people.

Where we find non-compliance with a regulation (or part of a regulation), we state which part of the regulation has been breached. Only where there is non compliance with one or more of Regulations 9-24 of the Regulated Activity Regulations, will our report include a judgement about the level of impact on people who use the service (and others, if appropriate to the regulation). This could be a minor, moderate or major impact.

Minor impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had an impact on their health, safety or welfare or there was a risk of this happening. The impact was not significant and the matter could be managed or resolved quickly.

Moderate impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had a significant effect on their health, safety or welfare or there was a risk of this happening. The matter may need to be resolved quickly.

Major impact - people who use the service experienced poor care that had a serious current or long term impact on their health, safety and welfare, or there was a risk of this happening. The matter needs to be resolved quickly

We decide the most appropriate action to take to ensure that the necessary changes are made. We always follow up to check whether action has been taken to meet the standards.
